

The great corporate Diwali makeover

Published: Thursday, Nov 4, 2010, 10:46 IST

Place: Mumbai | Agency: DNA

Of course there's an adage connected with doing your best and looking it too, and no-one's doing that better in the run-up to Diwali than the city's corporate-ville, who are multi-tasking paper and nail filing with botox and business meet-ups with equal ease...

Affirms cosmetologist Dr Jamuna Pai: "Women really want to look good this season. The number of queries, especially those from corporates — opting for beauty treatments is at a peak now. Non-invasive procedures, botox, dermal filler injections, laser/chemical peels are in huge demand," she informs.

And it's not just the usual. This time around, people are gifting lavish dentistry treatments too, that cost as much as a lakh! "People want to beautify their smiles at all costs and companies are aiding them in the way of that. I've also got many people asking for laminates," says cosmetic dentist, Dr Mukul Dabholkar.

Says cosmetic surgeon Dr Mohan Thomas who is also a senior consultant at Breach Candy hospital, "Friday-to-Sunday treatments such as creating a dimple and body shaping require little down time and are extremely popular. So are the lunch time non-surgical face-lifts that take just twenty minutes," he adds

http://www.dnaindia.com/lifestyle/report_the-great-corporate-diwali-makeover_1462031

A 32 yr. old British soldier serving in Iraq who has diabetes since childhood has come to Mumbai to get treated with us for fat deposits as he is not happy with the treatment given to him for the same problem in the chest region. He was treated in England for his chest fat deposits and unhappy with it

AJ is a british national who flew down to Mumbai for body sculpting/liposuction. He is part of the British security force and has been a diabetic since a year old(juvenile diabetes). It is obvious that this gentleman did not let diabetes stop him from enjoying a full life with a fairly good physique which was required of him to be part of the British force. He had areas of stubborn fat around his upper and lower abdomen and flanks. He had previously undergone surgery in the UK for addressing his gynaecomastia. Unfortunately it left him with a very noticeable deformity of his chest that he was very conscious about.

After communicating with us over a period of time the treatment plan included liposculpting of his body as well as correcting the deformity of his chest with 3 D liposuction. He was operated on 20/05/10 at Breech Candy hospital and had a successful outcome. He is extremely pleased with the care received, surgical results as well his hospital stay.